DATASET USED

As you know, customer reviews play a vital role in the purchasing decision of a product. They provide valuable insights into the quality, performance, and satisfaction of a product. In this section, we will discuss the dataset we have used, which contains 6000 rows of product reviews.

The dataset includes reviews of different products from various categories such as books, software, cameras, dvd, health, and many more. The reviews are collected from different e-commerce platforms and are in the form of text data. The dataset includes the filename and the reviews.
